

Ruins of the medieval town of Nehaj, founded in the 15th century are 10 km (north-west) from the town of Bar. They are located on an inaccessible hill 225 metres above sea level.

It was first mentioned in 1542 and it was built by Venetians for defence purposes.

St. Dimitrije's Church, with two altars (Orthodox and Catholic), which dates from the 13th century and is older than the fortification itself, is located in the town.